TWO PRISONERS AT B.I.S. FACE MURDER CHARGE

BOTH YOUTHS CAPTURED

Negro Caught Near Amanda
by Paul Balthaser

LANCASTER, Dec. 18 — (UP) — First degree murder charges were to be filed today by John Silbaugh, Fairfield county prosecutor, against two prisoners who beat a guard to death with an 18-inch pipe wrench while attempting to escape from the Boys' Industrial School here yesterday.

The guard, Hobart B. Stewart, Police Chief William McCrady and Deputy Sheriffs Miller Fissell and Bob Armstrong took part in the hunt Thursday for the two fugitives from the Boys' Industrial school, near Lancaster. The officers patrolled roads in the eastern part of Pickaway county.

Brown was captured near Amanda after a five hour search. Sidar surrendered.

Crime Confessed

"I swiped the wrench," Sidar told authorities. "I told Brown to be ready at 11 o'clock. At that time I walked past where Stewart was sitting and cracked him on the head. I didn't think I had killed him. I took the keys to his car from his pocket and ran outside to meet Brown."

The prisoners escaped in the stolen car. In response to a riot call, searching parties soon covered highways in the vicinity of the industrial school. They were overtaken two miles west of the school.

Sidar gave up but Brown ran into a field. Paul Balthaser, a gasoline station attendant, captured Brown later.

Three prisoners escaped from the school last May after having kidnapped the school electrician. All were captured later. Employees of the school are not permitted to carry weapons. Stewart was with 10 prisoners when the two, who had been "model" prisoners, bolted.

Stroud was quoted as saying his motive was robbery to feed his destitute family.

BRADY POINTED OUT AS GUNMAN IN BANK THEFT

CARTHAGE, Ind., Dec. 18 — (UP) — An Indiana farm boy who vowed to "make John Dillinger look like a piker," was sought by G-men and state police today for a $2,100 Carthage, Ind., bank robbery.

A bandit trio, whose leader was identified as Alfred Brady, held up the bank yesterday and escaped in a bullet-riddled black sedan.

Federal agents joined the search when it was reported the bank was insured by the Federal Deposit Insurance corporation. The gang also was wanted for transporting jewelry taken in a Lima, O., raid across a state line.

Brady, accused of the murder of an Indianapolis, Ind., policeman and half a dozen robberies in Indiana and Ohio, shot and slugged his way out of a Greenfield, Ind., jail where he was waiting trial for murder last fall. His companions in the jail break, James Dalhove and Clarence Lee Schaeffer, Jr., also were identified partially as his companions in the Carthage raid.

COUNCIL OFFERS $350,000 FOR WATER UTILITY

Washington C. H. Officials

NEW SYSTEM RUMORED

New Contract Sought by Ohio
Service Co.

WASHINGTON C. H., Dec. 18 — Washington C. H. has offered $350,000, including old bills and judgments, to the Ohio Water Service Co. for the waterworks it operates here.

The offer, set by council a week ago, was made at a meeting behind closed doors. Although the offer has not been formally turned down, the reaction of company officials is said to amount to rejection.

Conversations at the meeting are said to have centered on two issues, the water company officials seeking a new contract and city officials seeking to bargain for the plant.

Pull Both Ways

City officials said the situation is growing more tense with the water company using overdue fire hydrant bills as pressure for a contract, and council, by judgments, the indebtedness and a conviction rates will be increased, hoping for municipal ownership.

Reports have been circulated concerning the installation of a new water system by the city if the present system cannot be "bought right." It was reported unofficial estimates for a new system have been obtained and intimations are the consumption at present rates would finance a new $400,000 plant.

A representative of a Chicago bonding firm has informed Circleville councilmen a report of a survey conducted of the water system here would be presented at the first meeting in January.

SPANISH WARSHIP FIRES SHOT NEAR THE U. S. S. ERIE

WASHINGTON, Dec. 18 — (UP) — The state department confirmed today reports of an encounter between the U. S. S. Erie and a Spanish warship in the Port of Gijon.

The identity of the Spanish warship was not ascertained in the state department advices. The Erie is a U. S. coast guard cutter. The department was advised that the Spanish vessel fired two shots in the general direction of the Port of Gijon where the Erie had just arrived.

One shell fell about 500 yards from the Erie and the other landed in the hills behind the town, the department was advised.

The shots were fired from a range of about 10,000 yards. Although the state department advices failed to identify the Spanish warship, reports from Spain said that the ship was the nationalist warship, Espana.

Educators Declare Money
$4,000,000 Short

COLUMBUS, Dec. 18 — (UP) — The administration's $68,000,000 tax program, swept through an obedient house of representatives by an overwhelming majority, went to the senate taxation committee today for approval.

Passage of the five-point program yesterday, including the controversial $50,000,000 sales bill, was regarded by education officials as a crushing blow to their year-old school foundation program.

Schools in Lurch

State Director of Education E. I. Bowsher announced school officials would make a last stand fight before the committee today to obtain a larger share of sales tax proceeds for the schools.

The bill, passed by a vote of 85 to 24, almost exactly as approved by the house taxation committee, provides about $22,000,000 for school operation, or $4,000,000 less than the minimum amount school officials said they would need from this source.

Because of its controversial nature, consideration of the bill was deferred until the four other revenue-raising measures were pushed through.

These were the cigarette tax bill, designed to raise $6,000,000, passed by a vote of 105 to 3; the liquid fuel tax bill, between $10,000,000 and $11,000,000, 106 to 4; the "use" tax bill, $500,000, 98 to 4 and the admissions tax bill, $1,500,000, 105 to 4.

Insurance Act Law

While the house worked on the tax measures, the unemployment insurance act was signed by Speaker of the House J. Freer Bittinger and Lt. Gov. Harold G. Mosier. It was sent to Gov. Davey whose signature made it law.

Wallace Predicts Big 1937 Wheat Surplus

WASHINGTON, Dec. 18 — (UP) — Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace today foresaw the possibility of a billion bushel wheat crop in the United States next year as the crop reporting board completed final estimates of 1936 production.

Plantings and indicated intentions of farmers to plant spring wheat may result in 70,000,000 acres in wheat next year, Wallace said. This would be the largest planting since 1919.

Only another drought or a severe drop in prices, which now appears unlikely, can prevent a huge wheat surplus next year, Wallace said. The drought this year cut wheat production 200,000 bushels below the 1928-32 average, according to latest estimates. The corn crop, it was expected, will be the shortest, with the exception of 1934, in 60 years.

May Not Change Estimates

The report, to be issued at 3 p. m. today, is not expected materially to change estimates made on Nov. 10. The board estimated general crop production then at 79 per cent of normal.

Cotton farmers came through the drought with the highest production since 1921. A yield of 12,407,000 bales was reported earlier this week. The shortest carry-over in several years has kept prices above 12 cent a pound.

The report also will estimate income from all crops. Secretary Wallace, in his report to President Roosevelt this week, said cash income from crops and AAA benefits would total $7,800,000,000. This was an increase of 11 per cent over last year and 89 per cent above the 1932 depression low.

The November report estimated crop production at 1,526,627,000 bushels: wheat, 627,233,000 bushels; oats, 782,750,000 bushels; barley, 143,916,000 bushels; peaches, 1,311,560,000 pounds; and rice, 45,141,000 bushels. December estimates are not expected to change those figures materially.

'FEEDER' LABOR TROUBLE HURTS CAR PRODUCTION

TWO OHIO PLANTS DOWN

Peace Brought to Detroit
Factory; 1,300 Return

Supplies Blocked

While officials of the automobile and glass labor unions confessed in Washington today, conciliators made every effort to bring peace to the supplier industries where strikers threaten curtailment of the heaviest December motor car production in history.

Thirteen hundred of 28,700 men affected by feeder industry strikes returned to work today at the National Automotive Fibres company, Detroit, after a tentative settlement was agreed on in an eight-hour conference between plant and union representatives.

Meanwhile, strikes in body plants, assembly lines, glass and parts factories in Detroit, Kansas City, Atlanta, Ga., Toledo, Ohio, Shreveport, La., Ottawa, Ill., Charleston, W. Va., and Canton, O., blocked supplies of glass, wheels, brakes, pistons, bodies and scores of other parts to the busy automobile factories.

Homer Martin, president of the United Automobile Workers of America, and Glenn W. McCabe, president of the Flat Glass Workers, conferred with John L. Lewis, head of the committee for industrial organization in Washington. The two unions, both backed by the CIO, recently agreed to work together in facing the automobile labor situation.

Automobile manufacturers so far have managed to operate successfully despite shortage of glass due to strikes in Libbey-Owens-Ford and Pittsburgh Plate Glass company plants.

Production to Fall

"But," according to H. E. Gronseth of the publication, Automotive Industries, "curtailment of automobile production is expected to follow shortly unless an early settlement can be effected of the strike which has closed the Kelsey-Hayes wheel plants."

LEACH DELAYS MILEAGE CASE UNTIL DEC. 28

COLUMBUS, Dec. 18 — (UP) — Hearing on the legislative mileage fee injunction suit was postponed today from Dec. 21 to Dec. 28 by Common Pleas Judge Charles Leach.

The postponement was granted at the request of Gilbert Bettman, former attorney general of Ohio, co-counsel for Arnett Harbage, Madison county farmer who brought the suit. Bettman told the court he will be on another case in New York next week.

The suit was brought to prevent payment of $21,000 to members of the house as "expense" money for trips to Columbus they never made during a five month recess. The legislators have hired Clarence D. Laylin, Columbus attorney, to fight Harbage's action.

TROTZKY SEEKS PERMISSION TO LIVE IN MEXICO

Application Filed Through Legation in Paris After Note of Welcome

MUST OBEY ALL LAWS

Russian Now Living Near Oslo, Norway

MEXICO CITY, Dec. 18 — (UP) — Piety Leon Trotsky, one time co-dictator of Soviet Russia, has asked permission to reside in Mexico and has been advised that he will be welcome if he obeys Mexico's laws governing the political activities of political refugees, it was said officially today.

Trotsky applied through the Mexican legation at Paris for permission to reside in Mexico, it was said.

Minister of Interior Silvestro Guerrero at once consulted President Lazaro Cardenas. After his consultation Guerrero wired that the one time Bolshevik war lord might come to Mexico at any time provided he promised to obey the laws which restrict political activities of refugees.

The government's permission was wired to Trotsky on the day his permission to reside under internment in Norway expires. Though at midnight Trotsky technically will be subject to expulsion from Norway, immigration officials at Oslo informed the United Press that Trotsky was expected to remain for some time unless he left voluntarily.

He had been informed that Mexico was ready to receive a request from him for shelter. Norwegian officials, however, believed that before he made formal application — or if he applied — he would at the same time seek guarantees for a measure of freedom in order, particularly, that he might resume his writings.

In Norway Trotsky has been under close internment, at an isolated farm near Oslo.

WISE DEFENDS NEW FIRE BOX IN UPTOWN AREA

"The new fire alarm box at Court and Main streets is faster than the old box," Fire Chief Talmer Wise stated Friday in correcting the opinions of councilmen.

"That was why it was placed in the high value district to speed up calls," the chief said. "A call can be received through the new box before the glass could be broken and the door opened on the old box."

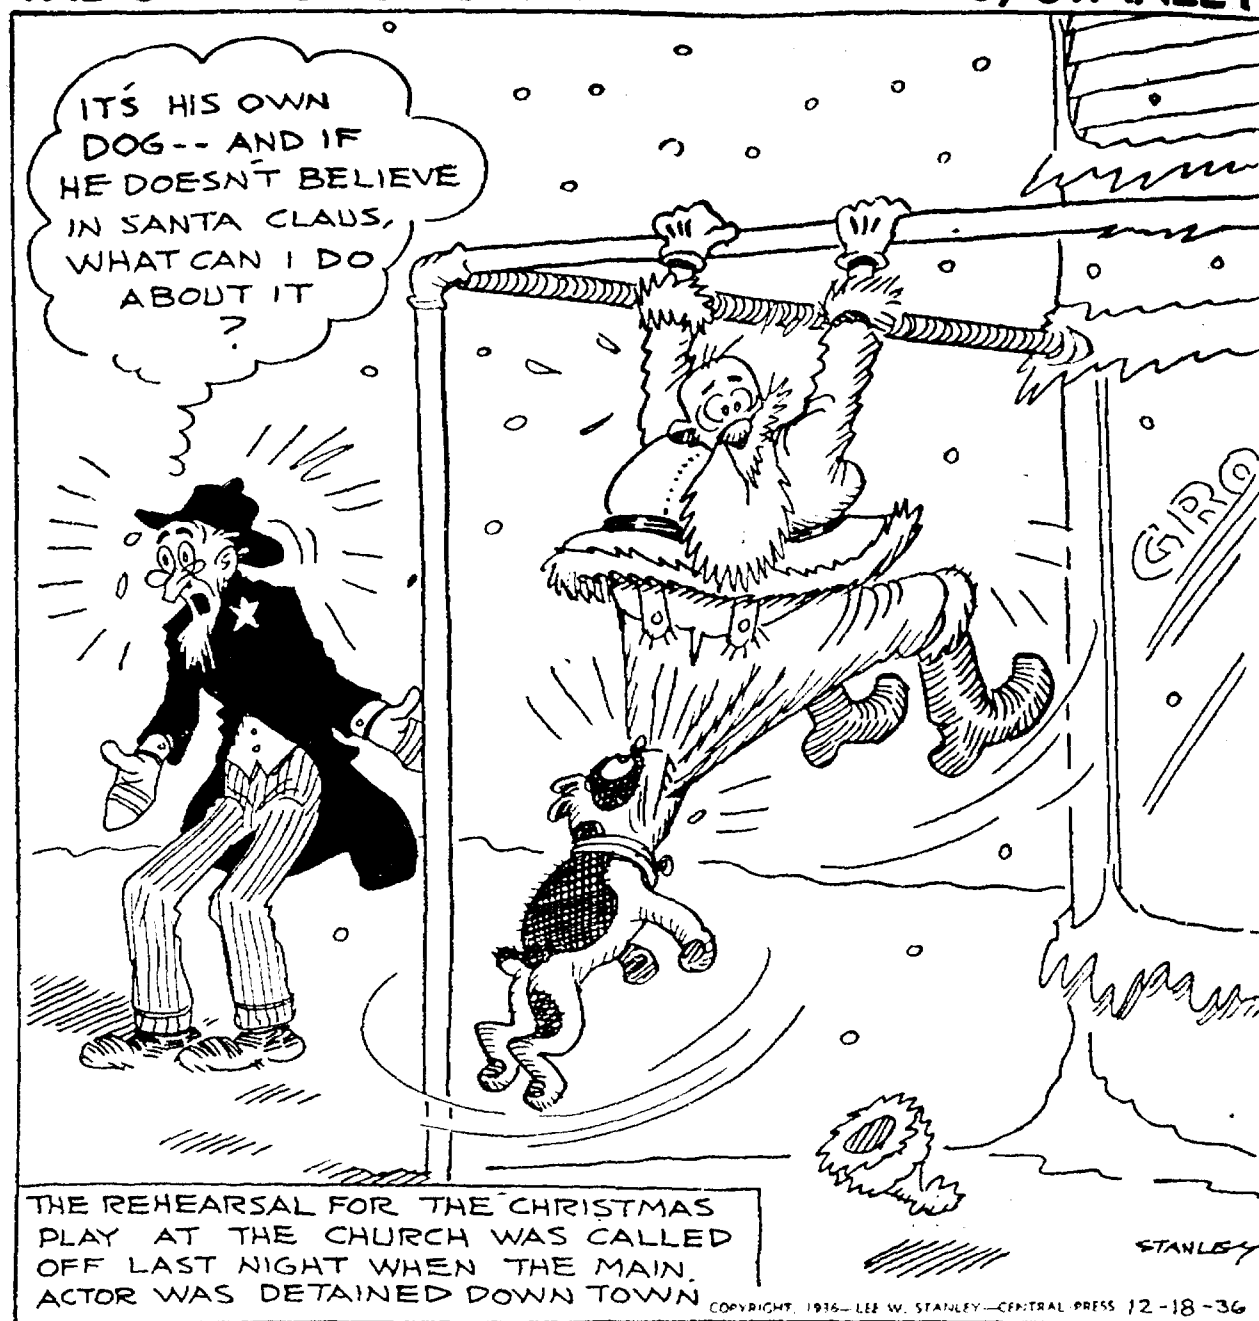

"There is an indicator at the fire department and always has been as it was part of the original equipment when the fire alarm system was purchased many years ago. It is in good working order and is tested every day to see that it is working."

Complaints were registered with council that the new box at the main corner, No. 47, required longer to ring than the old box, No. 12, taken to N. Pickaway street near Berger hospital. They contended firemen waited for the bell to tap the first round and it took 12 seconds longer for it to tap 47 than 12.

HUGE AMOUNTS SET ASIDE FOR OHIO FARMERS

COLUMBUS, Dec. 18.—(UP)—Ohio farmers who co-operate in the program outlined here today by the Ohio Agricultural Conservation commission will receive benefits of between $12,000,000 and $15,000,000 Elmer Kruse, St. Marys, the commission chairman, announced.

The commission met here yesterday with representatives of the Ohio State Extension department and representative farmers to discuss the soil conservation program for 1937.

Besides Kruse the commission members are Clark Van Scoyk, Hilliards; D. D. Deeds, Granville; Dale C. Williams, Hollandsburg; and John W. Wulchert, Columbus.

The farmer representatives here were Dwight Wise, Sandusky county; Theodore Dupert, Allen county; Harry Donahue, Clinton county; Forest Stahl, Wayne county; C. C. Kainard, Portage county; John Cummings, Ashland county; Genius Payne, Muskingum county; F. W. Vernon, Athens county; and H. W. Leitnaker, Fairfield county.

A program whereby soil depleting crops were to be replaced by soil conserving crops was outlined. The commission members instructed the farmer representatives who will address groups in their respective sections that the government would make payments averaging $9 per acre for each acre thus shifted up to 15 per cent of the total soil depleted land.

Approximately 165,000 Ohio farmers are expected to co-operate in the 1937 program.

TWO SPEAKERS TO APPEAR FOR 'EMANON' CLUB

L. K. Bear and J. S. Coffey, of Ohio State university, will be the speakers at a meeting of the Emanon club to be held Monday at 7:30 p. m. in the Farm Bureau home.

This club consists of 25 young Pickaway county farmers. Last year the organization had no name. This year they decided on "Emanon." When spelled backwards it is still "no name."

The group plans a series of discussions during the winter months on farm topics.

You might as well use the government money to fix your house. The neighbors think you are, anyway.

TEN WOMEN LOOK ON AS SLAYER DIES ON NOOSES

FULTON, Mo., Dec. 18.—(UP)—Ben Booth's widow watched the state hang George McKeever in an old barn today for the slaying of her husband.

Mrs. Alice Booth, sat calmly as McKeever, walked steadily up the 13 steps to the gallows. The trap was sprung at 7:32 a. m. and he was pronounced dead at 7:45 a. m.

McKeever hesitated an instant before he stepped under the noose and asked "forgiveness for any injury I have caused anyone."

Mrs. Booth, still composed, said after McKeever was pronounced dead she thought "justice had been done," and considered McKeever's scaffold statement an "admission of guilt." McKeever had steadfastly maintained his innocence.

Perhaps a hundred other persons stood in deep snow outside the barn, its timbers blackened by age although this small Missouri town resented to the last the execution. Townspeople said it "hung a pall" on the Christmas season. Many residents left town for the day.

Mrs. Wilson said that she felt McKeever "got what was coming to him."

"I would have felt much better if the other one had been up there with him," she said. Francis McNeely, confessed slayer of Sheriff Wilson, is serving a life sentence. McNeely testified against McKeever.

Ten women, including Mrs. Booth and Mrs. Roger Wilson, wife of the Boone county sheriff who was killed with Highway Patrolman Ben Booth, were in the crowd of 150 that watched the execution.

In a letter sent recently to church heads, P-T. A. presidents, grange masters, school organizations and other officials of Pickaway county organizations, James I. Smith, Jr., chairman of the Pickaway District committee, Boy Scouts of America, announced that his committee is now organized and ready to assist in the organization and development of Boy Scout units. The committee has offered to supply information, talk with groups, and answer questions about Scouting in Circleville and throughout the county.

Smith pointed out in his letter that many boys who want to be Scouts are unable, due to the fact that there are no Troops located in their vicinity. He urged that organizations consider the possibilities of providing this activity for their boys and learn what steps are necessary to proceed with the formation of a Scout group from the committee.

Interested persons may obtain information from Smith or other members of the committee, or address inquiries to this paper.

Smith's letter follows:

"Throughout the existence of the Boy Scout Movement it has been our experience that 'boys will be Scouts'. Witness the more than seven million who have been Scouts in a brief twenty-six years.

"And yet, how many boys we could approach with the question: 'Are you a Scout?' and get the response: 'Now . . . I didn't have the chance. There's no Scout Troop out my way.'

"There's no Scout Troop . . . Doesn't that sentence stick in your mind and give you plenty of food for thought?

"We who make up the Pickaway District of the Boy Scouts of America, believe in Scouting. We believe that the Boy Scout Program will make a boy happier, healthier, a more helpful citizen! We believe that a boy needs Scouting. It is our job to see that it is possible for every boy to become a Scout.

"Yes, truly, 'boys will be Scouts'. . . PROVIDED THEY ARE GIVEN THE CHANCE. The Pickaway District is now organized to render assistance to churches, parent-teacher associations, granges, fraternal organizations and the like, who are interested in making this great youth program available to their boys.

"Our committee stands willing and ready to help. We shall be glad to answer questions, supply information, or talk with your group about Scouting. Youth work cannot be postponed — why not start a Scout Troop?

Yours for better boyhood,
James I. Smith, Jr., Chairman,
Pickaway District Committee,
Boy Scouts of America."

Christmas Gift Of Formal Dress

A NEW evening frock for the holiday parties is surely a Christmas gift that will be appreciated by any girl home for the holidays or the business girl. Time was when "formals" were only for "society" girls. Every girl needs one in these modern times.

Clinging white crepe roma makes this lovely one worn by Patricia Ellis. It has a high neckline, simply draped, and a waist marked by a wide, pointed belt of quilted silver cloth. The skirt is long and slim, with a train—which might be dispensed with if preferred. There is a little jacket of the same material edged with the same effective quilted silver cloth.

If you prefer a color for a gift dress instead of white, as being more practical (nothing could be more becoming and arresting for a young girl), look at the striped dresses.

THEATRES

JIMMY SCRIBNER! AND HIS "JOHNSON FAMILY"
You've heard him on the radio—and couldn't believe our ears! NOW you can see him on the stage—THE MAN WITH TWENTY-TWO VOICES—the most amazing radio personality of today—and you'll hardly believe your eyes!

Jimmy Scribner personally, writes, rehearses and plays each and every one of the twenty-two characters of his unique, hilarious radio dramatic sketch, "The Johnson Family."

You will see him, before your very eyes, transform himself instantly from the sanctimonious "Deacon" to shy young "Miss Lucy;" from "Grandpa's" quavering tones to the eager voice of "Mister Peewee." Shut your eyes; you'll vow there are a dozen people on the stage. Open them—there's just ONE MAN!

Jimmy Scribner is at the Cliftona theater, Sunday.

AT THE GRAND
One of the fastest of all Bob Steele western pictures, excitingly filled with action and thrills a well-balanced, hard riding, straight-shooting feature, is "Cavalry," a Republic release starring Bob Steele, at the Grand Theatre.

Steele portrays a captain of the union forces who brings to justice the ringleaders of a band of men, trying to establish Sageville as an independent country.

Fight sequences, staged at Kernville, California, were all made unusually realistic, with the aid of the best "stunt" performers in the movies. Falls from galloping horses were screened against a background of more than 250 riders, charging and shooting as they rode.

AT THE CIRCLE
It's a family feud, starting two generations ago, that adds to the hatred felt by Kent, arch-plotter in "The Last of the Warrens," latest Bob Steele thrill-Western, now playing at the Circle theatre, for young Ted Warren, his successful rival in love. An old-time Kentucky feud, as history proves, usually lasted until the last survivor of the contending families was wiped out of existence. In this case, Kent, shoots, and imagines he has slain Ted's father and makes desperate effort to eliminate the son as well. But the older Warren survives his wound, and Ted carries the war into his foe's territory with a zest and deadly determination that sweeps aside all opposition. You'll glory in this dashing, romantic tale of reckless youth and matchless daring, the great contribution to the screen made by Bob Steele.

G.O.P. LEADERS VOTE TO RETAIN JOHN HAMILTON

74 to 2 is Ballot After Kansan Resigns Post
as Chairman

REP. FISH IS OPPOSED

Liberalization of Former Policy Seems Certain

WASHINGTON, Dec. 18 — (UP)—The contest for control of the Republican party shifted today to the new congress where the odds favored a liberalization of G.O.P. policies.

The first skirmish took place yesterday in Chicago where the Republican national convention refused 74 to 2 to accept the resignation of Chairman John D. M. Hamilton. But political observers consider the Chicago vote of comparatively slight significance in determining the future of Republicanism. That issue will be determined largely in congress and in the press.

Fish Hurls Warning

Sound judgement available here is that the issue of liberalism versus conservatism in the Republican party was not the prime consideration in the committee's decision to reject Hamilton's offer to quit. Rep. Hamilton Fish R., N. Y., accredited to the committee with a proxy vote from Alaska, attempted to raise the liberal-conservative issue. He wanted the committee to ditch Chairman Hamilton and reform the party or suffer it to die.

Few persons in Washington believe the 74-to-2 vote is fairly representative of his standing with party leaders generally. Hamilton conducted an expensive and unsuccessful presidential campaign. Ultimately he may be compelled to walk the political plank. Some western and more or less progressive elements of the Republican party were not sympathetic with Gov. Alf M. Landon's candidacy nor active in the campaign.

Of the eight remaining western Republican members of the senate, only two during the campaign, raised their voices audibly in Gov. Landon's behalf. They were Sen. Arthur Capper, Kansas, and Sen. Frederick Steiwer, Oregon. Senators William E. Borah, Idaho, Lynn J. Frazier, North Dakota, Hiram W. Johnson, Calif., Peter Norbeck, South Dakota, and Gerald P. Nye, North Dakota, were silent. Senate Republican leader Charles L. McNary did not bolt the ticket but he apparently was too busy campaigning for re-election to stump for the Kansan.

If such men were doubtful of the Kansan team before the election it may be assumed they are more doubtful now of the desirability of going into the 1938 congressional campaign under the same leadership.

Small Party Man

The house has more comfort for Gov. Landon and Hamilton, principally because Republican leaders Bertrand H. Snell, N. Y., is a party man before all else and dislikes insurgency.

There is an obvious division of opinion within the party leadership and even among its editorial spokesmen regarding future policies. Republicans in congress will possess some advantages in any plan to impress their ideas upon the party. Congress is a good sounding board. The first opportunity for formulation of party policy will come when Republicans meet shortly after the session opens to adopt a legislative program.

DARBYVILLE

Mr. and Mrs. Leroy Hammack and Mrs. Ethel McKinley were guests at a dinner party given at the home of Miss Carolyn Bochar in Williamsport, last Friday evening. The party was given in honor of the O. E. S. officers for the years of 1936-37.

Old Customs Vanish as Indians Try to Get Used to Self-Rule Under Revolutionary New Deal

Peganz, one of the few surviving Apache scouts for the U. S. army during the Indian wars.

The type of new frame dwelling which Uncle Sam is building for the Apache Indians of New Mexico.

A Puye Indian, attired in warrior costume.

MESCALERO, N. M. — The red-skin is astir again. Not on the warpath, but on the road he hopes will lead to what the Great White Father in Washington, D. C., calls the "abundant life."

On June 18, 1934, congress passed the Indian reorganization act, which permits tribes to adopt self-governing charters. Previously Indians had no choice except to be "wards of the government." The government did most of the Indian's thinking, and sometimes, the Indians believed, that thinking was not in their best interests.

In August, 1936, the Apache tribe of the Mescalero Indian reservation of New Mexico became the first tribe in the southwest to obtain a final charter under the New Deal measure.

Revolutionary
Its effects are revolutionary. The act gives the Apaches wide powers, including the right to veto, in some instances, the decision of federal government agencies.

Let us take a trip to the land of the Apaches, once the fiercest of warriors, in their homes on the beautiful Mescalero reservation, high in the White mountains of New Mexico and note some final phases of their taming.

The Apaches are no longer a tribe, but a corporation.

The hereditary chieftain is extinct. In his place is a "president of the business committee," duly elected by popular vote.

Almost gone are the tepees and thatched hut, and in their places are brand new, neat, white frame houses, built under a federal resettlement program.

Moderate-priced automobiles have supplanted the sturdy little Indian pony.

Tolerated but rarely patronized is the old-time medicine man, with his weird chants and strange herbs and charms for warding off the "evil spirit." Modern Indian mothers prefer to have their babies in the Agency hospital. They still carry their paposes, however, in baskets slung to their backs. Incidentally, the Indians are not a vanishing race—their population is slowly increasing.

Quarter a Dance
The old ceremonial dances remain—but only as a source of revenue. The Indians have learned that tourists will pay to see them dress up in feathers and bright costumes and gallop shrieking around a campfire.

For a quarter they will gladly shed their overalls or ready-made store clothes, put on buckskin garb, and let you photograph them.

The Apaches have learned the value of white man's education, and appreciate the new day schools. Soon they will have a high school. Some attend schools and colleges off the reservation.

and later enter into conventional white man's professions or trades. But most return to the reservation—for life is easier there.

Protestant and Catholic missionaries vie for the Apache's soul, which once went to the Happy Hunting Ground. Recently there has been a movement to preserve the pagan faiths, and the Apaches have their pagan church, where the old tribal legends are learned. But after attending the pagan church the Apaches go to their respective Protestant or Catholic churches.

In fact, the Apache is no more devout than the average American. Often as not he would prefer to pass the Sabbath by joyriding down to Tularosa or to Albuquerque. There he can hire somebody to buy his some firewater—federal law prohibits sale of liquor to Indians—and observe the day of rest in a manner after his own heart.

The Indian Reorganization (Wheeler-Howard) Act is a pet measure of John Collier, commissioner of Indian affairs. Collier believes the Indians are entitled to democratic self-rule.

So far the Indian tribes have been slow in getting their self-rule charters. Henry (Chae) Dodge, Navajo chieftain, recently charged that selfish white agitators have prevented his tribesmen from applying for a charter.

Ernest McCray, superintendent of the Mescalero reservation, believes the act will work out to the benefit of the Indians, as intended. So does Victor Dolan, president of the business committee.

Despite his Irish name, Dolan is all Indian. Most of the Apaches now have American names, acquired from teachers in government schools. Dolan is quiet, courteous and capable.

Self-Rule
"It will take some time for the Indians to understand and get accustomed to self-rule," Dolan remarks. "But gradually they will learn to like it."

Dolan's ten-member committee, representing the five districts of the reservation, will govern the affairs of 750 Indians. Of these 525 are Mescalero Apaches. Two hundred are Chiricahua Apaches, whose fathers and grandfathers fought with Geronimo against the whites.

In 1913, after Geronimo's death, the Chiricahua, prisoners at Fort Sill, Okla., were transferred to the Mescalero reservation. Twenty-five are Lapans, or Mexican Apaches.

President Dolan is assisted by a vice president, a secretary and treasurer. The secretary, Belle Kazhe, is the only women member of the business committee.

The present economic organization of the Apaches might be described as half communistic and half capitalistic. The Indians own the reservation lands in common. An individual is assigned an average of 30 acres of farm land, but he cannot sell the land, and if he fails to use it the land reverts to the tribe for re-assignment. Sale of valuable timber on the reservation goes into tribal fund, to be used only for the good of the whole tribe.

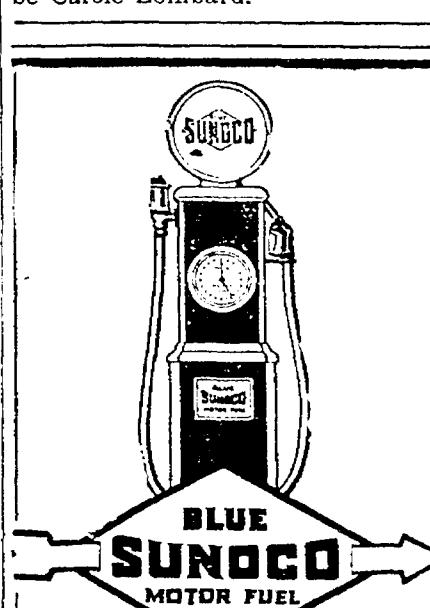

But profits from farming and stock raising, the two principal occupations, go to the individual who earns them. Each Indian keeps for his own use the income derived by his own efforts.

System Popular
The Apaches like this system. They believe that communal land ownership guarantees a fair start for all, and that private retention of profits produced on the land rewards the industrious.

Under the new constitution or charter the Apaches, acting as a corporation, will be able to handle their own financial affairs in a business-like manner. And each voting Apache will have a voice in running the corporation.

It is a broad and liberal constitution—tending to develop responsibilities as well as self-government.

A critic of Hollywood says its actresses come out of the same mould. No matter what she looks like on arrival, she turns out to be Carole Lombard.

BRITAIN HAS 287 KEELS ON WAYS

LONDON (UP) — Two British industries—shipbuilding and electrical equipment—are enjoying a wave of prosperity.

Britain's most famous liner companies are extending their fleets, bringing to the shipyards the busiest times they have known for six years.

The Clan Line has ordered six 10,000-ton cargo liners from the Greenock shipyard. Ellerman Lines have seven great steamers under construction. The Blue Funnel Line is inviting tenders for five 10,000-ton cargo motorships for the Far Eastern trade.

Other Lines Expanding
In addition, new construction programs are being prepared by the British Indian Line, Cunard White Star Company, Union Steamship Company of New Zealand, and the Canadian Pacific Railway Company.

In Scotland there are being built 12 passenger liners and 63 cargo ships, 61 oil tankers and coasters, totaling 136 vessels; in England and Northern Ireland, nine passenger liners, 52 cargo ships and 90 tankers and smaller ships are on the ways.

Present construction of 287 vessels with a combined gross tonnage of 1,500,000 means a bill for new commercial ships of nearly $125,000,000.

German Exports at Top
Last year Germany exported electrical equipment worth $92,500,000; the United States $81,500,000, and Britain $70,000,000. Together these three countries account for two-thirds of the world's trade.

Britain has a fair chance of outstripping its rivals shortly, because the Union of South Africa, Britain and India are the three largest markets in the world for such machinery as generators, transformers and converters, and South Africa and India, where great electrification schemes are expected, import nearly all their requirements from Britain.

There is a certain amount of danger in translating the utterances of politicians into English. The creatures will rise up and complain that they have been misquoted.

FIVE KILLED BY POLICE OFFICER FOR "REVENGE"

PITTSBURGH, Dec. 18 — (UP) — A murder-crazed Duquesne policeman went on a rampage of revenge to deal death to three women and two men who had testified against him on charges of assaulting a 12-year-old girl.

Early today, fellow policemen saved the 65-year-old patrolman, Martin Sullivan, from a mob that wanted justice — justice as swift as the death he dealt to his victims on the tour of murder last night. Five persons he killed, a sixth he wounded.

While officers pieced together the incredible story of mass murder by Sullivan "who wanted revenge and got it," a mob of 200 persons shouted "lynch him" as he was held in the Duquesne jail. Officers quickly cleared a path through the mob and took him to the county jail here. The benign old man was smiling as he was led through the mob.

Using his service revolver with deadly precision, Sullivan shot and killed the mother and the brother of the girl he was accused of molesting, the mother and father of another girl, 19, who once was his housekeeper, and finally, Mrs. Laura Bacon, well known social worker of the Clairton-McKeesport district. The father of the girl he was accused of assaulting was wounded.

Sullivan worked a ruse on Constable Thomas Gallagher, who was taking the veteran officer to jail after Sullivan had been held by Alderman C. D. King without bail on a statutory charge. Sullivan asked Gallagher if he could stop and notify one of his sons, who lived over a drugstore, to lock up his own home.

While Gallagher waited in front of the drugstore, Sullivan slipped out the back way, went to his home for his service revolver and 15 bullets.

Scientists can now trace almost everything to its beginning except an idle rumor.

OPEN LETTERS

TO HIGHWAY OFFICIALS

GENTLEMEN: It was with pleasure that I learned you had taken steps to reduce the dangers of accidents on Route 22 between New Holland and Williamsport by re-constructing the highway. All safety measures possible should be included in the contract for the work. This road, while it does not seem dangerous, has been the scene of many accidents, several of them fatal, in the last year. Now that you have started a move to protect lives and property in the western part of the county, why not add three other Pickaway county projects to your program. Something should be done about the curve south of the Mackey ford road on Route 23 where many wrecks, the climax being deaths of three youthful Circleville men, have occurred; the dangerous intersection of Route 22 and 104, three miles west of Circleville, believed to have the highest traffic toll in the county, and the intersection at Leistville where Route 56 and 159 cross. The Eichinger wreck of a few years ago, and many others have taken place at this point. I know it is asking too much to have all these improvements made in a year's time, or even three or four years' time, but why would it not be possible to add one to the spring program and another to the fall highway safety program each year until all are completed? The highway department would not suffer by the expense, but Pickaway county motorists and others passing through out beautiful country could do so with a much better chance of getting through without a fatal collision.

CIRCUITEER

TO COMMUNITY CHURCHES

FOLK: Many of you are planning your Christmas programs for Sunday, and from all indications all churches of the city and county will be crowded for the day. Much work has been done in many of our churches and they deserve large congregations at all services. Cantatas, selections of music, children's recitations and songs, candlelight services and other exercises are being arranged to help make the 1936 Christmas a real spiritual season. Much credit is due the participants in the various programs and their instructors for the time and effort they are expending to make these programs possible. The least you can do is ATTEND YOUR CHURCH SUNDAY.

TO ROUNDTOWNERS

DEAR FOLK: One week from today is Christmas. Shoppers are on the home stretch, buying briskly. Many employees have received Christmas bonuses and look

World At A Glance

There are times in the affairs of men when, for a space of days or weeks or months or even longer, there practically is NO NEWS except of just one kind.

The interval during which all human attention was riveted upon the King Edward-Mrs. Simpson affair was such a period.

Indefinitely on into the future, as news normalizes itself, the public is sure to run daily into third or fourth chapters of news stories in the press, with the earlier chapters of which no one is at all familiar, simply because they never appeared (or scarcely so), having been drowned out while the Simpson-Simpson monopolized print and the radio.

OTHER STORIES VANISH

For example, floods in the Philippines, the other day, were reported to have cost thousands of lives. The newspapers carried this catastrophe three or four paragraphs on inside pages. Ordinarily it would have had a column on Page 1.

Senator Wheeler's investigation of the American railroad structure developed details of the upbuilding of the Van Sweringen's three-billion-dollar transportation empire from a mere handful of small change. For what it was worth, it should have been accorded a column of space in any daily. It got forward to the finest holiday celebration in many years. Firemen have hundreds of toys ready for distribution to children of needy families. They believe that they have enough to fill all orders. Many organizations are making arrangements to distribute baskets of food to poor families. You should co-operate with your church or some other organization to which you belong to help make the Christmas season happy for the more unfortunate of the community. Your Christmas will be happier when you know you have aided these unfortunate folk. I know one man who left a $5 bill at a local restaurant so the Knights of the Road who spend Christmas eve in the city building have a good meal. Do your bit and I trust every Circleville resident has a happy Christmas.

TO SEAL COMMITTEE

FRIENDS: Since next Friday is Christmas, only a few days remain before your annual sale of seals, the proceeds from which is used to combat tuberculosis and other ailments, comes to an end. There are scores of persons and organizations who have received supplies of seals who have not returned them or the money expected for them. The next few days would be a good time to round up all the delinquents and in this manner increase your receipts. The campaign, I am told, is going over in splendid style with many communities in the county reporting their quotas passed. If all who have received the neat little stamps will send in their money the drive will be one of the most successful in county history. Remember, purchase of $1 worth of Christmas seals may mean that an unfortunate child can be examined and treated if signs of tuberculosis appear; he may be given an examination for faulty eyesight and fitted with much-needed glasses; his tonsils may be removed, or several other things from which he and his entire family will be benefitted may be done.

TO LATE MAILERS

PROCRASTINATORS: This is just a warning that you and some of your friends may be sorry if you delay mailing your Christmas packages and cards until next Wednesday or Thursday. If you wait until late next week, your gifts are almost certain to remain in the postoffice over the Christmas holiday. Every postoffice in the nation is crowded with holiday mail; in the next few days delays are certain because of the immense volume. If you do your mailing not later than Monday, postmen will have a chance to clear their offices; if you wait their task will be impossible. There is no reason why your cards and packages cannot be mailed before Tuesday. A Christmas greeting is a greeting whether received Monday or Thursday; a gift box can be marked "Do not open until Christmas", and in most instances it will not be opened until the proper time. Why not give Uncle Sam's postal employees a break, too?

TO MUSIC LOVERS

INTERESTED: Here is a note of advice: Make it a point to visit the high school auditorium Sunday afternoon at 4:30 o'clock to attend the candlelight carol service to be conducted by the senior girl's glee club. It will be well worth your while.

The BLOODHOUNDS Bay

By WALTER S. MASTERMAN

COPYRIGHT: RELEASED BY CENTRAL PRESS ASSOCIATION

MEAD THIS FIRST:

Jack Reid only wishes to the murder of Sir Henry Severing in the chapel of his ancient Abbey, is a new death which has been found as an itinerant painter. In the chase of a jewel, Reid could raise no alarm at the time of the murder. Richard Seiden, summoned from Scotland Yard, questions Lady Hilda, the victim's widow, and Eric Colindale, a neighbor whose bloodhound found the body of Sir Henry Hilda and Colindale are shocked by Sir Henry's will which leaves everything to James, the butler, except an allowance for the children and his widow. PROVIDED she marries Colindale. Reid, who has fallen in love with Sylvia Lawrence, governess of the two Severing children, determines to help Seiden solve the murder when he learns her life and the children are endangered. One of the mourners at Sir Henry's funeral, a Mrs. Holden, shows unusual interest in the Abbey. After a chat with Hicks, the village innkeeper, Mrs. Holden proves to be Seiden in disguise. Jack Reid, in his cottage near the Abbey, has a visitor. (NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY)

CHAPTER 25

JACK REID got to his feet and saw Lady Severing enter his cottage, clad in a dripping mackintosh and carrying an umbrella.

"Am I disturbing you, Mr. Reid?"

"Not in the least," he said bashfully. "Won't you sit down—I mean, won't you take your wet things off?"

She smiled wanly at his obvious confusion, but liked him all the more for not being a sophisticated man of easy manners.

"You will think it rather strange that I should come and see you here," she remarked, slipping off her mackintosh. "I wanted to have a few words with you, Mr. Reid, and would rather do so here than ask you to come to the Abbey as things are at present."

"I am sorry it's so wet," he managed to say.

"The fact is, I've had a talk with Mr. Colindale, in which he asks me to . . ."

She paused as though doubtful how to proceed.

"I spoke to him yesterday, Lady Severing, I understand the position entirely," he told her that he was going to recommend her for the post of agent during his absence.

"She gave him a look of gratitude for the way he had spared her from explanations.

"Yes; you see, he will be away some time and I must have someone."

"I'm afraid I haven't much experience," he began, but she interrupted him.

"Let me put it straight to you, Mr. Reid. My great experience is needed, but who I must have is a man who is a gentleman in the true sense of the word—not one who will come here and gradually get hold of bits of gossip and weave them together. You have been here while this terrible affair has been happening and know all about it. A stranger would want to find things out for himself and get an entirely wrong idea."

Her face turned from white to red as she spoke, and he understood her meaning.

"And then," she went on, as he waited, "Mr. Colindale told me you were a man of private means who had no particular occupation, and that would be all the better, for if you wanted to go at any time no harm would be done."

"Quite so," Reid replied, wondering what all this was leading up to.

"The difficulty is that I am not really in the position of being able to appoint anyone—at least I don't know quite without a stand. Mr. Reid," she said in a sudden burst of candor, "I'm going to be quite frank with you. My late husband has left me totally unprovided for. All I shall have is the allowance for the two children. You see, I don't know how far I can spend that on salaries and so on."

"You have been very good in speaking openly with me, Lady Severing. I will do the same. I have nothing to do, and am a rolling stone, without kith or kin or home of my own. I have, however, money of my own." A smile flickered round his mouth at the thought of the method by which he had acquired the said money.

"And I told Colindale that if you offered me the job I would take it."

"When do you wish me to come?" he said simply.

"The sooner the better. Mr.

"I am going to take you still further into my confidence."

Colindale's office will be at your disposal, and you can go through the accounts and the general scheme of things he has devised with regard to the estate and its upkeep. I will help you if I can."

He glanced round the cottage and laughed. "I am already a tenant of yours, Lady Severing, but there is nothing much here that I should have to move. I can pack a suitcase and come almost at once if you like."

She smiled at his urgency. "I hardly think it would do for us to be seen walking together to the Abbey. I came from the village on purpose; but if you care to come at lunch time, it will give me time to tell James, our butler."

She bit her lip at the humiliating thought that she would have to consult him.

Had she gone then—she had already put on her mackintosh—a rather embarrassing situation would have been avoided. The cottage door opened without ceremony and the tall, thin form of Colindale stood on the threshold.

He cast a look at the two persons and took off his hat.

"I beg your pardon for intruding," his manner was uncompromising and frigid. "I had not seen you had a visitor, Reid. I thought I should find you alone on a day like this."

"Lady Severing called on a matter of business," Reid said stiffly. "She was just going. You wished to see me, Colonel?"

"Any time will do. I must apologize to you, Hilda."

"There is no need," she remarked, with a flash of anger. "Mr. Reid will explain the reason for my presence here."

She walked out of the cottage without so much as a "good morning."

The Colonel watched her go and burst into a sneering laugh.

"We shall have our friend Colindale jealous soon," he said, turning to Reid.

"I hardly think so."

"Well, well! There is no accounting for the ways of women. However, that's neither here nor there. I came to offer you a job—I don't know whether you want one, or whether it would suit you. You seem to be at a loose end, and from what I have seen of you have good manners and address. How would you care to manage my place while I am away?"

Reid was staggered. Here, within half an hour, were two people seeking his services, for no particular merit on his part.

"You are going away?" he asked.

"Oh, not permanently. Not even for long; but I have business in London and that takes me to town by a goodish bit. I had a note from Colindale telling me he was taking a holiday—and I don't blame him. I don't know whether you have been told, but as the estates join he had been for some time doing the work during my absence—it's really nothing but supervision."

"I am afraid I haven't the necessary experience," Reid observed. The Colonel was bound to know of the offer he had received, so he added: "It's rather a coincidence, but Lady Severing's unexpected visit here was made to offer me Colindale's position."

"And you have accepted?"

"I have. If I can't manage it properly I shall resign."

The Colonel's manner became more friendly. "Capital, my dear fellow, that will be excellent; you can do the two. Come along and have dinner with me tonight and we'll talk matters over. No, I insist. I had meant to ask you in any case. I'm a bachelor and quite alone, but I have an Indian cook who makes excellent curries."

"Very well, I shall be there. I suppose your bloodhounds won't be loose?"

"I never allow them out of their kennels except with Coats," the Colonel said rather gravely.

"Then I shall be there—about sevenish?"

"That will do; don't be later because my chef goes off the deep end if his cooking is spoilt. And, by the way, Reid, I have rather a queer request to make. If you should happen to see any strangers hanging round as you come up the drive, just have a look at them, will you?"

"I am afraid that, as a stranger myself, I would hardly recognize strangers. They might be villagers for all I know."

"I don't think any villagers would be likely to intrude on me—they are rather too afraid of my bloodhounds. And as to recognizing them, I rather think they would get out of your way. I have fancied the last two or three nights I have heard people round the house, and on the night of the murder I thought I saw some figures—may be all imagination."

"I'll have a look out, certainly," Reid assured him.

"Then I'll see you this evening," Reid watched him swinging off with his free, easy stride, twirling a riding whip which he always carried, and which seemed part of his equipment, for he was never without it.

Local and Particular Diseases of Finger Nail

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D. It usually occurs in nervous and THE FINGER NAILS not only respond to general diseases in the body, as described yesterday, but they are subject to their own local and particular diseases.

Dr. Clendenning

One of these is hypertrophy of the nails, or overgrowth of the nail plate in any direction. The nails become thickened, curved and clawlike. It is more likely to affect the nail of the great toe than any others. It usually is associated with other skin diseases such as psoriasis, eczema and occupational dermatitis. Some nervous diseases also cause it and it may result from injury.

In treatment the horny masses underneath the nail plates can be dissolved out by a solution of sodium hydrate or a milder remedy, salicylic acid.

Atrophy of the nails also occurs. It may occur in all the nails of both the fingers and toes. The nails become smaller and lose their elasticity and luster. The surface may be marked by pits or depressions. Most of the cases are congenital and hereditary, although sometimes they are due to infection or injury. Little can be done to add most of these cases, although the use of arsenic has sometimes resulted in benefit.

A curious phenomenon is the periodical shedding of all the nails.

Roughness Due to Infection
Brittle, rough nails, with more or less uncomfortable inflammation around the nail beds, usually are due to infection of the nail bed, and usually with some fungus similar to ringworm, though pus infections and yeast infections are quite common. This is the commonest cause of unsightly finger nails.

The ringworm is much the same as that which causes athlete's foot, although this usually occurs in the finger nails. It is easy to see how the finger nails could be infected this way, because a spot of athlete's foot will readily infect them, and ringworm is carried from one to many parts of the body usually by the patient's own finger nails.

Treatment is usually successful, although it requires a good deal of patience because results do not occur usually in less than a year's time. Soaking the fingers in hot soap suds and then soaking them in some antiseptic like a moderately strong potassium permanganate solution, then dipping them in oxalic acid solution to prevent staining, and coating the nails with full strength Whitfield's ointment, has been highly recommended. It may be best to keep up for some time before results begin to appear.

The X-rays usually have to be used sooner or later, and are about the best form of treatment for these infections.

Appearing when Heaven's breath
And brow
Are sweet as hers we love.

Come to the luxuriant skies,
Whilst the landscape's odors rise,
Whilst far-off loving herds are heard
And songs when toil is done,
From cottages whose smoke un-stirred
Curls yellow in the sun

Star of love's soft interviews,
Parted lovers on the muse;
Their remembrance is Heaven
Of thrilling vows thou art,
Too delicious to be given
By absence from the heart.

HANLEY AND KERR DRILLING LIGHT TEAM TO REPRESENT EAST ON COAST

BUCKEYE STARS IN STARTING 11 NEW YEAR'S DAY

Bulvid's Trip to Cotton Bowl Removes Passer From First Squad

BACKFIELD PROBLEM BIG

Outfit to Leave Chicago Tonight for West

CHICAGO, Dec. 18--(UP)—Dick Hanley and Andy Kerr, one an exponent of power football and the other dean of razzle dazzle, assembled their eastern all-stars today in the opening drill for the annual east-west charity game at San Francisco New Year's day.

"They sent the squad of 22 through a hurried workout in Dwyer stadium, then withdrew to outline plans to stop a western team that may enter the game a strong favorite."

"This probably is the lightest team we have ever taken to the west coast," Hanley said. "Both Andy Kerr and I selected the most versatile players available to get the best out of a small squad, but they don't run very heavy."

Face Tough Job

Despite presence of such all-Americans as Larry Kelley of Yale, Ed Widseth of Minnesota and Ace Parker of Duke, Hanley and Kerr faced one of their toughest assignments in years.

The aggressive line may hold a slim edge, but the east lacks finesse in the backfield.

When Marquette accepted a bid to the Cotton bowl, we lost a forward passer we needed, Hanley said. "Ray Bulvid would have been a tremendous asset. It's true the west lost Sammy Baugh to the same contest, but they've got other boys to do their throwing."

Bulvid, finest passer in the midwest, was replaced by Bucky Bryan, Tulane. Bryan is

Ohio's Cage Teams To Start Campaigns

COLUMBUS, Dec. 18--(UP)—The relative strength of teams in the state's two collegiate conferences, the Buckeye and the Ohio, will be settled partially tonight.

Four contests in which members of the Buckeye oppose Ohio conference quintets headline an eight game program.

The inter-conference battles are hopped by the contest between Ohio Wesleyan, co-champion of the Buckeye, and Baldwin-Wallace, annually one of the standout teams of the Ohio conference, at Berea.

Wesleyan and Baldwin-Wallace split even in two engagements a year ago. The Bereans took the first game 28 to 18 and then were dropped 32 to 31 in a rough-and-tumble return engagement at Delaware.

Eddie Finnegan, the genial young Irishman who gained All-American court honors during his playing days at Western Reserve, will make his debut as head coach of basketball at Baldwin-Wallace with the Wesleyan game.

Finnegan has eight lettermen back from the Yellow Jackets' squad of a year ago. The only regular lost was center Ward Powell and he has been replaced by the giant Bill Davidson.

Schoen, Noble Play

Norm Schoen and Kenny Noble, the halfback mates of football fame, will pair at forwards on the court this winter, with Bud Haerr and Bob Rudes at the guards.

The other veterans available for duty are Dorrance Case, Bob Heiniller and Ralph Adams, forwards.

Otterbein, which handled the conference champions, Marietta, their only defeat a year ago pits its veteran squad against Miami at Oxford.

Nick Frascella, Wooster's great forward who scored 297 points as a sophomore a year ago, got off to a fine start in his battle to retain the individual scoring championship, when he garnered 30 points last night as he paced the Scots to a 76 to 32 triumph over Ashland.

Muskingum maintained its early lead in the Ohio conference race when it defeated Capital 36 to 20. The triumph was the Muskies' third straight in league ranks.

Ohio University, the favorite for the current Buckeye championship, remained unbeaten when it turned back Marietta, the defending Ohio conference titlist 40 to 31.

A free land is one where the citizen feels out of debt if he doesn't owe anybody but the government.

About This And That In Many Sports

Jackson at Scioto

The big game of the county sked tonight is Jackson at Scioto. The Commercial Point crew is the top heavy favorite to win, but these Jackson lads have been coming along fast in the last few weeks—Other games are New Holland at Muhlenberg, Williamsport at Ashville (and this will be a battle), Walnut at Salt Creek, Pickaway at Monroe (with the unblemished record of the Pickaway girls to stand because Monroe has no girl's team), Perry at Darby—Circleville goes to Chillicothe, the reserves playing at 7 and the varsity at 8:15.

New Coaching Plan

Mt. Vernon is trying something new in the way of coaching basketball—Myron Prech, current mentor of the reserve team, will advance to the varsity, while Paul Snyder, head coach, will tutor the reserves. The following season Snyder will step back into the head coach's post and as a result will be more familiar with the boys who will form the nucleus of his team.

Captains at Reserve

Western Reserve, with one of the greatest freshmen basketball teams in its history, has seven former scholastic captains on it. The boys who led their prep school teams and now are Reserve freshmen are Joe Scott, Elyria; Jack Divon, Sharon, Pa.; John Blair, Cleveland East; Joe Tusciano, New Castle, Pa.; Bill Simmermacher, Cleveland Euclid Shore; Ken Baker, Cleveland Brush; Clarence Hiel, Cleveland Shaker Heights; and Jack Barnholt, Port Clinton.

DUTCH HEFFNER, PARELLI MATCH TOPS CAC CARD

Jimmy "Dutch" Heffner and Tony Parelli, two of the toughest and roughest wrestlers in the game, will headline the Circleville Athletic Club's Christmas charity show Monday evening. All children will be admitted for one can or jar of fruit or vegetables to be turned over to charitable organizations.

Heffner lost a match Thursday evening in Columbus to Jim McMillen, former Illinois football star, when McMillen connected with a right to the jaw knocking Heffner from the ring. He was not able to return before the count of 10.

The match was a hot one from start to finish.

Heffner, a Texan, is sought by many promoters as he always puts on a good show. His favorite hold is the "Indian chokers."

Parelli, his opponent, is a native of Italy and is known as the "Mussolini of the ring."

The supporting cast will include Babe Caddock, of Tampa, Fla., who took several snacks at the referee last week, against Frank Hill, of Carbondale, Ill., and Eddie Watson, Circleville, against Henry Hill of Kansas City, Mo.

The boxing card will include two 4-round matches between Pickaway county youngsters. Homer Patrick and Shirley Hulise will meet at 125 pounds, and Jimmy Emerine, Jimmy Seimer will mix it at 112 pounds.

Patrick is the boy who whipped Southpaw Eddie Bird last week.
